

SMC Election 2012

The following is an announcement from the Singapore Medical Council (SMC):

An SMC Election will be held in October 2012. All fully-registered medical practitioners who hold valid practising certificates during the Election will be required to vote. Doctors who are overseas during the Election period will be exempted from voting, if they are able to provide documentary evidence of their overseas status.

Please keep SMC updated of your latest mailing address, so that the Election documents will reach you in a timely manner. Doctors who fail to vote without a valid reason will be subjected to a fine of $500, and will not be able to renew their practising certificate when it next expires, unless the fine is paid.
